Hardly had this order been given, when clear and sharp came General Ward s command, Present arms! This order was obeyed within a short distance of the spot where to-day the motto, Obedience to Law is Liberty, is carved on the present Court House. With military tread General Ward and his party passed up the hill. Presenting fixed bayonets, former officers, neighbors, and friends of General Ward greeted his approach. Nearing the entrance, he was met by bayonets that pierced his clothing. Steadfastly refusing to retreat, General Ward heard the drums beat and the order given to charge. In wrath the old officer faced his soldiers: -- I do not value your bayonets; you might plunge them into my heart; but while that heart beats I will do my duty; when opposed to it, my life is of little consequence; if you will take away...
