Their advance was hourly expected; D Urban, Beresford s Chief of the Staff, wrote gleefully on October 15, Each individual division has now more than sufficient troops to occupy the space allotted to it, and the overplus forms a first reserve for each respectively. If the force thus posted beats the attacking enemy, of which there can be little doubt, our telegraphic communications will bring down Craufurd from Arruda and Hill from Alhandraon to their flank--and the affair will be complete. There is much appearance that the enemy will attack this position with his whole force--Alhandra is far too strong for him. He cannot well retire, and it is hoped that his distress for provisions will compel him to bring matters to a speedy decision V But both the cautious Commander-in-Chief and the eager head of the Portuguese Staff were mistaken in estimating...
