In this a wooden block, a stone, a ball, or anything about two inches in diameter, sufficed for a -shinny, while a broom or umbrella handle or branch of a tree of suitable shape took the place of the present expensive hockey stick, with its mathematically correct curves and dimension?, and finished surface. Two large stones about three yards apart at each end of the field or vacant lot, as it usually chanced to be, served as goal marks, between which the shinny had to be forced. The number of players on each side was not limited. Every one with the gang or crowd at the time was expected to play; the more the merrier. The game was started by each side lining up at its end of the field and then sending its fleetest runner to the centre, where the shinny was placed, the side with the fastest runner getting first strike. The off-side rule was observed, shinny on your own side being the warning cry, which, if not obeyed, brought a blow across the offender s shins. Whether shinny represents a stage from which the present game of hockey evolved, or whether it is a degenerate form of the latter, the writer is not certain. At any rate the early state of hockey in England resembled shinny, and this...
